Arrivement Yard, Whitby. Old Whitby, the crooked half town of streets full of old-fashioned houses, climbs the steep cliffs and provides habitations for the fluctuating population of fishermen and jet-workers. This is the Whitby known to the antiquary Celandi who wrote of it in the year 1538 as "Hwytby, a fischer toune, with a haven, to help with a peere." Whitby has two piers now—and is as ever a "haven under a hill."

CARTE POSTALE. POSTKARTE.

(FOR ADDRESS ONLY.)

Argument Yard, Whitby. Old Whitby, the crooked half town of streets full of old-fashioned houses, climbs the steep east cliff, and provides habitations for the fluctuating population of fishermen and jet-workers. This is the Whitby known to the antiquary Leland, who wrote of it in the year 1538 or 1539, as "ane great fischar toune, with a havenet holp with a peere." Whitby has two piers now, and is as ever a "haven under a hill."

Many thanks for your kind letter. We have been a days outing to Runswick Bay. Glorious Weather part of the time. Tomorrow proposes to be the same at Hallon. I do hope it will be fine for you L L.
